

ABOUT THE STATE

Happenings of Interest from Different Sections.

Mrs. Myers, wife of Rev. S. H. Myers of Panton, died last week from the effects of a shock.

Bradford appropriated $1,500 to secure a site for an armory, providing the government sees fit to erect an armory there.

At the town meeting in Hartford, ex-Governor Samuel E. Pingree was re-elected town clerk for the 57th consecutive time.

Louis N. Currier, proprietor of a women's wear store in Burlington, died in Taunton, Mass., Friday night of heart trouble. He was visiting at the home of W. R. Lube, on his way home from a business trip to Boston and New York.

At a meeting held in Middlebury Springs last week, the Congregational and Methodist churches, which have been federated for the past year with much success, voted to continue and to invite the Baptist society to join with them this year in union services.

At the head of the American Army university, the largest university in the English speaking world, which has just been opened in Beaune, near Paris, is Col. Ira L. Reeves, formerly president of Norwich University. Fifteen thousand soldiers are taking a three months' course there.

Miss L. Kelley of Boston, who went abroad with the first Harvard unit in 1915, has returned to this country and has been visiting in Bradford. She was superintendent of some of the British Red Cross work for the duration of the war. On her arrival in Boston, she found that her trunk had been looted and all her clothing, souvenirs, data and everything had been taken.

Residents of Barre in the past few months have been compiling a history of the town, hoping that the town would at the annual meeting appropriate funds for its completion, but after much debate it was voted not to appropriate the money this year. The work on the history is to be continued, however, as it is thought the town later will furnish the funds.

A petition to be presented to the board of school commissioners asking for the removal of Wesley H. Douglass, principal of the junior high school, is being circulated in Burlington. The commissioners will hold a meeting on the question of whether or not Douglass was justified in striking with a rubber hose recently a dozen of his pupils. Public feeling has been raised high in the case and opinion based on what evidence is at hand, seems evenly divided.

FOUND DEAD IN BED.

Brattleboro Woodchopper, John Belliveau, aged 68.

Brattleboro, March 11.—John Belliveau, aged 68, a woodchopper, was found dead in his home at 28 Flat street March 8 by his son, George Belliveau. He had been employed at the Barber farm, but on account of not feeling well had taken a few days of rest. His son went to the home twice that day and found it locked and at last he decided to break in. Mr. Belliveau was standing at the sink, which came about up to his waist line, the upper part of his body being bent forward over the sink and his head resting on a basin.

Health Officer Henry Tucker said death was due to heart disease following hardening of the arteries. He said Mr. Belliveau had been dead eight or 10 hours and perhaps more. A hair brush in the sink was taken to indicate that the man went to the sink to brush his hair. He leaves two sons, George and Deane, both of this town. His wife, Mary Perreault Belliveau, died Jan. 23, 1918.

UNIVERSALIST CAMPAIGN

Is to be Conducted in Vermont During the Present Month.

Rev. George F. Fortier, superintendent of Universalist churches for Vermont and Quebec, announces that a meeting of the Universalist clergymen, lay preachers and volunteer speakers of the denomination is called for White River Junction on Monday, March 24, at 3 p. m. for the purpose of meeting Rev. John S. Lowe, general superintendent, who will explain the plan, purpose and machinery of the great drive for members, ministers, missionaries and money upon which the denomination is now entering. The meeting will continue through the day and evening.

The month of March is being observed by the Universalist church as spiritual consecration month in preparation for this drive. Sunday, March 16, will be observed as personal consecration day and every minister will occupy his own pulpit, delivering a sermon outlining the campaign as it has been planned. On March 23, every minister will exchange pulpits. It is also planned to open all dormant and inactive churches upon this day and more than 75 Universalist preaching services will be held in Vermont. The pulpits of those having no regular services will be occupied by lay preachers and volunteer speakers.

On Sunday, March 30, a Christian service flag will be raised in every Universalist church. As preliminary to the campaign a one-minute league of workers has been organized in the state to carry out the plans of the national committee. Rev. George F. Fortier of Morrisville is executive chairman of the drive and Miss Rena A. Paul of Wells heads the one-minute league of 1,500 members.

New Corporations Formed.

Articles of association of the Jay Cemetery Association, Inc., have been filed in the office of the secretary of state. This association is formed for the purpose of acquiring real estate for burial purposes, either in or adjoining the town burial ground in the town of Jay, and for the care, beautification, improvement and maintenance of such grounds. The incorporators are R. E. Wakeman, H. W. Griggs, H. W. Miller and others from the town of North Troy.

George C. Cary and Arthur A. Beaman of the George C. Cary company of St. Johnsbury have filed affidavit of proposed issue of capital stock for $50,000, divided into 500 shares of $100 each. The Cabot Farmers' Co-operative Creamery association has been organized and articles of incorporation filed, with capital stock of $10,000. The president of the new organization is O. L. Dow, the secretary-treasurer, R. M. Hoyt. The other directors are: Albert Smith, Walter Perry, Arthur Rogers, A. J. Smith and F. G. Lamberton.

Hadn't Met Him.
Mrs. Backbay—We dine in family this evening. Won't you join us?
Mrs. Newirth—Well—er—really, I don't know Mr. Familie, and I don't like to meet strangers.—Boston Transcript.

WELCOMED BY NORWICH MEN.

Col. Frank Tompkins Gave Talk in Chapel Monday.

Northfield, March 11.—The chapel exercises at Norwich university were enlivened Monday morning by the welcome to Colonel Frank Tompkins, recently commander of the 301st infantry (Boston's Own) on his return for the third time to act as professor of military science and tactics at the military college of the state of Vermont. College yells and applause greeted his appearance on the stage and the enthusiasm continued throughout his talk. The burden of his message was that the usefulness of cavalry in war is by no means past and that this country must continue to lay stress on that branch of military training.

The colonel arrived in Northfield on Saturday and was welcomed at the station by a mounted detachment of the cadets. He still shows all the old-time vigor of speech and action in spite of his experience in France. Colonel Tompkins, then captain, first came to Norwich in the fall of 1910, and remained for three years as professor of military science and tactics and commander of cadets. He returned in 1916 as a major, after having distinguished himself on the Mexican border and the pursuit of Villa. Upon the outbreak of war he was ordered into more active duty and raised to the rank of colonel. He organized and commanded the 301st infantry. His work with this organization brought him additional glory and honor.

His present detail to Norwich does not relieve Major Arthur M. Edwards, who acted as commanding officer of the S. A. T. C., and since then as professor of military science and tactics in the reserve officers' training corps unit. The two officers are to co-operate in the work of training the corps of cadets. That the war department should see fit to keep two officers of such high rank at Norwich is a decided evidence of the high place which Norwich holds in this regard as a training place for future officers. That such an officer as Colonel Tompkins should be one of those detailed to further evidence of the value attached to the Norwich system of training.

CAUSE OF LOW EFFICIENCY.

Defective Equipment or Lack of Material Important.

Factory employees are at fault only to a small degree in keeping plant efficiency at a low point, according to officials of the United States training service. Only 10 per cent of the dismissals of employees in one large plant, according to an inquiry conducted by this service, a new organization in the department of labor, were due to willful slacking on the part of the men. In the case of other dismissals, a number of causes beyond the workman's control were given. These included failure of power or equip-
